News Summary.

The State University of Mississippi, at Oxford, numbers at present 200 students.
The warehouse of Mr. NUTT, at Wilmington, N. C., was destroyed by fire last Sunday night. Loss about $3000.

The New York Times says of General Scott: "He was more jealous of his literary than of his military fame. He would endure criticism in reference to his battles with equanimity, but in matters of taste in literature, or even of punctuation, he could not brook contradiction."

The Raleigh Progress, of Wednesday, says: "We learn from a private letter from Goldsboro', N. C., that a difficulty occurred in that town on Monday, the 4th inst. Two negroes were killed and Mr. GEO. MORROW (white), chief of police, was severely cut in several places. On Monday night an extra police force of sixty citizens kept duty all night."

The Lynchburg News says: "The fatality of cholera amongst the hogs, in various sections around us, is becoming alarming, particularly to those who are addicted to the use of bacon. We hear of numbers of gentlemen, especially in Amherst, who two or three weeks since had from twenty to seventy-five hogs, who now have not a single one."

The Shenandoah (Va.) Herald, speaking of the mills and barns burnt throughout the Valley by SHREWDEN, under GRANT's order to lay waste and devastate, says: "In this neighborhood, we are happy to say, the most of the barns have been rebuilt, and the mills are progressing rapidly, and will be completed in time for the growing crops."

The following gives a list of the Bishops of the Episcopal Methodist Church, with their salaries: Bishop SPOULS, $1500; Bishop PRIZOR, $8000; Bishop EARLY, $2500; Bishop KAVANAUGH, $2500; Bishop ANDREW, $2500; Bishop PAINE, $3000; Bishop WRIGHTMAN, $3000; Bishop MARTIN, $3000; Bishop McTENZIE, $3000; Bishop DOUGLASS, $3000.

The Department of State has been informed by the United States Consul at St. Croix, West Indies, that the crop of sugar this year will probably reach 12,000 hhds., with a corresponding quantity of molasses and rum, say from 5000 to 6000 hhds. of molasses, 3000 of rum. This will be fifty per cent. more than the crop of 1865, and fully double that of the preceding year.

The Newbern (N. C.) Commercial says: "We regret to learn that the residence of Mr. SCOTT, near Deep Gully, upon whose family a great outrage was perpetrated a few weeks ago, was a night or two since, burned to the ground. We have not heard the particulars. The negroes convicted at Trenton Superior Court of the last outrage upon this unfortunate old man were to have been hung last week at Trenton."

The ladies of the Hebrew faith in Richmond have formed a Memorial Association, for the purpose of bestowing proper care on the graves of the dead Confederate soldiers of their people. Mrs. SOLOMON DAVIS is the President and Mrs. ABRAHAM LEVI the Secretary of the Association. Between forty and fifty young Jews, who were killed in battle or died in hospital, are buried in the Jewish Cemetery of Richmond.

In consideration of the fact that no legal payment can be made to any Southern officer of the Treasury who has not subscribed to the test oath, the Secretary of the Treasury has notified all such that their resignations will be accepted. He has also made a request that Congress provide for the payment of those who have been performing the duties of the department for the time during which they have been so engaged.

The National Intelligencer says: "At freedmen's villages, Rev. J. T. JOHNSON is performing the ceremony of marrying the people, of which three hundred couples will be married by to-night, and making legal the old marriage relations. The spectacle is really amusing. Squads of twenty or more couples stand up and are married at once. These consist of old and young, the aged and the infirm, arrayed in all manner of gaw-gaw and cast-off finery that they could pick up. Many enter upon the ceremony with reluctance, and only consent to the regulation, which is insisted upon by the Freedmen's Bureau, when informed that it is necessary to their new condition of freedom." We suppose they will soon all be marched to the creek and properly baptized.

On Tuesday, Judge UNDERWOOD, of the United States Court at Richmond, declined to give a decision on the question as to the right of lawyers to practice in that court without taking the oath prescribed by Congress. He remarked that he knew it to be in contemplation by some of the most radical men in Congress to repeal the disqualifying act of January, 1864, and was of the opinion that the act would be repealed before the adjournment of the present Congress. His repeal had been strongly urged upon Congress by a majority of the Supreme Court. Inasmuch as this question had been very ably argued before the Supreme Court of the United States, he felt great delicacy in undertaking to go further than to simply acquiesce in whatever course the gentlemen of the bar were disposed to take. There would be no departure from the usual course on the part of this court, unless an objection should be made, but he hoped that no objection would be made at this time, believing that the act would soon be repealed.

The New York Tribune, in referring to the rejection, at the instance of the Government, of the application of Mr. DAVIS' counsel for an immediate trial on the treason indictment, and the adjournment of the Court till the first Tuesday in October, says that meantime it is understood that Mr. DAVIS will be released, either on bail or on parole, and it presumes the Government feels the pressure of public opinion so far as to recognize the necessity of accepting the alternative of immediate trial or immediate release. A congressional committee, it is true, is investigating the evidence on which complicity in the assassination of ABRAHAM LINCOLN is charged, yet we are bound to suppose that the Government has long had full knowledge of that evidence. So in regard to the starving of prisoners, and other unwholesome crimes for which Mr. DAVIS is still held to answer at the bar of public opinion, their truth or falsity ought to have been determined before now. If Mr. DAVIS is innocent, it is gross injustice to keep him in prison. Judge UNDERWOOD hints that some action of the Government is likely to intervene between this and October which may prevent any trial at that time. The Tribune well says the Government will find frankness in this matter the best policy, and should avow its belief or its disbelief in the pending charges.

CHARLESTON.

MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 11, 1866.

JUDGE UNDERWOOD.

This latter day Daniel—imposed upon Virginia for her sins,—is very much given to preaching. But for certain inherent peculiarities, incompatible with the sacred office, we should say this distinguished jurist has mistaken his vocation. He preferred the ermine, doubtless not thinking himself worthy to be "a saint in lawn." But notwithstanding he has cast his lot with the profane and worldly, he never allows an opportunity to pass unimproved by a homiletic exercise. These sermons are put forth under the name of "charges." When the first of these was delivered, we cannot say with accuracy. The "charger" heretofore has occupied an obscure position; we may therefore be excused for not having closely followed the several steps in his public career. We have an indistinct recollection of first seeing his name in the public prints, as the solitary delegate from Virginia to the Black Republican Convention that nominated Mr. FREMONT. This unimportant item had passed into oblivion when the accidents of our civil and social revolution again brought this individual scum to the surface; now to be rewarded for his protagonism in the Black Republican ranks.

If ever man owed his position to accident, UNDERWOOD is that man. He is altogether an extraordinarily ordinary man; and in a normal state of society could never have risen to distinction or even notoriety. And yet he is not altogether an ordinary man. For if he were, he would conduct himself with decency and propriety, and not prostitute his high office for the base purpose of maliciously venting his long pent-up spite against his fellow-citizens. An ordinary man pays regard to public opinion; and does not wilfully or needlessly outrage all the most sacred feelings of his friends and neighbors. That Judge UNDERWOOD has taken occasion to do all this, and to do it repeatedly and deliberately, proves him no ordinary man. The New York Herald is not generally considered very squeamish on questions of social propriety. Yet Judge UNDERWOOD shocks the nerves of even the Herald.

We say not this because we are in the least disloyal. On the contrary, it is our loyalty takes umbrage at such language and conduct on the part of a United States Judge. Mr. UNDERWOOD had a perfect right to be an abolitionist, or anything else he liked; and to him doubtless belongs the credit of having been an original Virginia Unionist. He can moreover lay his hand on his heart, and thank his God in the market place (or the Court House), that he never was as wicked as these slaveholders. This union he can lay on his soul. But ought he not also to remember, that slavery was one of the lawful institutions of the land; and that some very good people had been slaveholders?

We venture to say that even Mr. UNDERWOOD, jaundiced though his vision be, has known of such. Is it decent, therefore, for him, a citizen of Virginia, and a United States Judge, to attempt to stir up the prejudices of his jury, and of all the crowd of Northern Radicals, against the people of Richmond, by saying that that city had "long been the centre of the greatest traffic in human beings that ever disgraced the world; a traffic which has employed many hundreds of moral monsters and many millions of capital; subsidizing the press, pulpit and politics of the State, rendering Richmond more infamous among men for this great crime than all the cities along the coasts of Senegambia, Upper and Lower Guinea, Congo, Loango, Angola and Benguela combined?"

The Judge is a learned and a travelled gentleman, and of course is quite familiar with the crimes of slavery all along the African coast. In this he has the advantage over us. We know nothing of Senegambia, &c., &c.; but we do know something of slavery as it existed in Richmond; and with all due deference to the opinion of the Judge, we humbly suggest that he is somewhat mistaken in his estimate of the horrors of slavery in that city.

We will say nothing here of the chaste and classic references the Judge made in his "charge" at Norfolk to the evils of the "institution"—then as now gratuitous and uncalled for. These remarks were indecent, obscene. No gentleman would have been guilty of such utterances. Yet the Judge doubtless cherished it his duty to launch these venomous shafts at the mother of WASHINGTON, JEFFERSON, PATRICK HENRY, MADISON, MONROE, CLAY, SCOTT and TAYLOR. Even the New York Herald, remarking on the above African, geographical quotation, says: "His violent denunciations of Richmond and its people en masse were better adapted for a stump speech from Parson BROWNLOW, or a lecture from that untamable abhor, WENDELL PHILLIPS, or for such a savage as Judge JEFFREYS on his bloody assize, than for a United States Court upon a case of treason."

And yet are there some who find ground for admiration in the character and conduct of Judge UNDERWOOD. We honestly confess that we are not of this number. TOM PAINE, JOHN WILKES, and LLOYD GARRISON, have, in a measure, occupied similar positions to their times and generations. They enjoyed the honor of holding opinions, shared by very few cotemporaries. But we do not think that history accords them a high place in consequence of their disregard of public opinion. And yet must we crave pardon of the shades of these worthies for comparing with them this new made model of a judge. If there is a sublimity in impudence, Judge UNDERWOOD has certainly reached it. We remember nothing more shameless, more devoid of heart and feeling, in a man of such high and dignified position, since the days of JEFFREYS.

What he remarked to his jury, regarding the threats used against him and them by parties in Richmond attempting to intimidate them,—is quite of a piece with the remainder of his character. The bully has ever been the coward. It is quite natural that he who will take advantage of the accident of official position to wreak a petty personal vengeance on a conquered foe, should sniff an assassin in the breath of every breeze. While it is very possible his guilty conscience should feel such terror, and apprehend such danger, we do not believe one word about these anonymous threats of which he speaks in his "charge." "The wicked flee when no man pursueth."

Let it not be said that we are severe on Judge UNDERWOOD, because he has arraigned JEFFERSON

DAVIS. In this he merely obeyed the orders of his superiors. It is the manner in which he has discharged this function we object to,—the gratuitous insult heaped upon the people and country, by this judicial monster, to whom they are to look for fair and impartial justice. His diseased imagination delights in disgusting and revolting images, all conjured up for the humiliation of the people cursed to be judged by this Pluto.

Some there are who find excuse for the language and manner of Judge UNDERWOOD, in the assumed fact that he has suffered much from persecution at the hands of these late Virginia rebels, both before and during the war. We believe it not. But even were it so, it would still justify such "charges" as those at Norfolk and Richmond. How different President JOHNSON! He also has long been averse to slavery. He undoubtedly suffered much obloquy in consequence of his expressed opinions and preferences. Yet see how differently he feels and acts in reference to this same question. When he rose from a comparatively private station to that of Chief Magistrate of the country, he nobly laid by all his private passions,—loves and enmities; and with single eye and steady purpose has ever since been endeavoring to restore peace to our troubled and divided land, heal the wounds so copiously inflicted, and cure the many sores of the body-politic. This is a glorious mission,—fit undertaking for the greatest of men; and we pray to God our President may be speedily successful in his laudable endeavor.

P. S.—Since writing the foregoing, the mails have brought us papers from every part of the United States, and all, of whatever party or complexion, with scarcely a single exception, loudly condemn this foul-mouthed Judge.
